

MSR switchable glass with and without radiation-shielding

A single touch of the button is enough to change the revolutionary switchable glass from opaque to transparent. This is made possible by a matt crystal film between the two panes of glass in the wall. When voltage is applied to the film, the crystals align and the wall becomes completely transparent. This switchable glass is particularly suitable for medical examinations, operating theatres and wherever discretion is required.

